

SENTENCING CONFERENCE 2022

CYBER EDITION

Sentencing Frameworks

Instructive | Communicative | Consistent Outcomes

31 October & 1 November 2022

Jointly organised by:

 Conference	10 Public CPD Points
	Practice Area Crime	Training Level General
	Day 1 4.5 Public CPD Points	Day 2 5.5 Public CPD Points

Overview

The courts play a key institutional role in sentencing offenders. While sentencing is a highly fact-based exercise, sentencing frameworks play an important role in securing principled and consistent outcomes in discrete cases. Such frameworks also aim to be instructive (without being prescriptive) and communicative. The use of artificial intelligence as a tool in sentencing and the extent to which artificial intelligence can interact with the exercise of judicial discretion is an emerging area that merits further consideration. These matters form the focus of the Sentencing Conference 2022, as do the perennial issues of sentencing considerations and options peculiar to special classes of offenders such as youths and those afflicted with mental health issues. Participants can look forward to hearing from an array of eminent speakers and presenters from the bench, the bar, academia and various specialist agencies who will share their views on all of these aspects.

9:00AM PARTICIPANTS LOG IN TO WEBINAR FOR DAY 2 MORNING SEGMENT

9:30AM Keynote Address by Mr Tai Wei Shyong SC, Deputy Attorney-General, Attorney-General's Chambers

Synopsis: The Prosecutor is a necessary party to every criminal case. Over time, prosecutors have become more involved in assisting the court in the sentencing process, especially with the advent of judicial sentencing frameworks. What is the Prosecution's approach in Singapore to assisting the court in sentencing? In what ways is the Prosecution best-placed to contribute? What factors guide the Prosecution when doing so? The session will explore these and other questions, such as how AGC's role has been impacted by, and has evolved alongside judicial practices and societal expectations.

10:15AM BREAK

10:30AM Experiential Learning 2: Institute of Mental Health

Synopsis: Evidence-based literature suggests that individuals with mental health issues are over-represented in all stages in the criminal justice system, and this has led to the development of mental health diversion programmes around the world targeted at providing more effective criminal justice responses to this group of offenders. This session outlines the principles of mental health interventions that an offender with mental illness would receive and undergo in Singapore, including forensic psychiatric evaluation and risk assessment in the pre-sentencing phase, psychiatric treatment in the community or psychiatric and correctional facilities in the post-sentencing phase, as well as continued psychiatric care and rehabilitation upon completion of the sentence.

Presenter: Dr Jason Lee, Consultant & Deputy Chief, Department of Forensic Psychiatry, Institute of Mental Health

11:00AM Plenary Session 2: Sentencing of Special Classes of Offenders

Synopsis: For certain classes of offenders, such as youthful offenders or offenders with mental conditions who commit minor offences, rehabilitation is often the dominant sentencing consideration. The law empowers the courts to impose rehabilitative sentences such as community sentences, probation and reformatory training. This session brings together a panel of experts and practitioners to explore these sentencing options from a legal, practical and operational perspective. It will provide insights into the considerations and processes that apply in the imposition of such sentences, as well as the rehabilitative processes that apply post-sentence.

Moderator: Mr Kessler Soh, District Judge, State Courts, Singapore

Panellists:

- Mr Senthilkumaran Sabapathy, Deputy Director (Criminal Policy), Criminal Policy Division, Ministry of Law
- Ms Diana Ngiam, Associate Director, Quahe Woo & Palmer LLC
- Dr Christopher Cheok Cheng Soon, Senior Consultant & Chief, Department of Forensic Psychiatry, Institute of Mental Health
- Ms Carmelia Nathen, Chief Probation Officer and Director, Probation and Community Rehabilitation Service, Ministry of Social and Family Development
- Ms Karen Lee, Director, Community Corrections Command, Singapore Prison Service, Ministry of Home Affairs

12:30PM END OF MORNING SEGMENT

1:30PM PARTICIPANTS LOG IN TO WEBINAR FOR DAY 2 AFTERNOON SEGMENT

2:00PM Experiential Learning 3: Singapore Prison Service

Synopsis: This session provides an overview of the Singapore Prison Service's rehabilitation approach and the evidence-based models that inform its rehabilitation work. The presentation includes the key components for effective rehabilitation and the programmes by the Singapore Prison Service, Yellow Ribbon Singapore and our community partners. An ex-offender will also share his rehabilitation and reintegration journey.

Presenter:

- Ms Caroline Lim, Director, Rehabilitation & Reintegration Division, Singapore Prison Service, Ministry of Home Affairs

2:30PM Plenary Session 3: Artificial Intelligence in Criminal Justice

Synopsis: Technology plays a critical role in efforts to grow the legal industry, and the proliferation of technology in the legal sector is not an unanticipated trend. We discuss current technological tools in sentencing and explore the tension between the publication of data to educate the public and ensuring that such data is meaningful, given the nature of algorithms and artificial intelligence. In exploring if there is room for 'algorithmic justice', panellists will address concerns surrounding ethics, the erosion of judicial discretion and the risk of obscured programmed biases.

Moderator: Mr Toh Yung Cheong, Principal District Judge (Strategic Planning and Technology), State Courts, Singapore

Panellists:

- Professor Julian V. Roberts, Faculty of Law, University of Oxford
- Professor Jesper Ryberg, Department of Communication and Arts, Roskilde University
